Lots of Laughs at Hot Shots

Thursday night, and that the club held two comedy nights per week. Diavolitis was glad to have a comedian in town as well.

"I think that it's a good testament to the demands of the public if they sell out two nights in a row ... because they booked a comedy show," he said.

Foley took to the stage first. Her voice, which is much bigger than she is, carried around the room with stories of growing up in a trailer park, comparisons between men and women and dirty songs about ex-lovers.

She remembered seeing the rich kids driving by in their Barbie Powerwheels.

"I had a wheelbarrow and a big brother," she said.

Makk (pic 4) made his way to the stage. He's a tall fellow - at 6'3" - but next to Foley he looked about 10 feet tall.

"I won her at a carnival," he said.

During his act, it was easy to see he's an experienced entertainer. The man has been on Just For Laughs and the Comedy Network and has been as far away as Melbourne, Australia with his act.

Makk joked about a variety of topics but kept going back to making fun of Rainbow Lake and the roads in the NWT. The crowd (pic 3) was lively and bold, which made the night very interactive.

Roger Ladouceur, co-owner of Hot Shots, seemed pleased with the turnout. He said later in the season, the pub will host a hypnotist.

"I won her at a carnival."
