Comedians Daryl Makk and Stephanie Foley perform for sold-out pub

In a city with such a wide selection of live music, it's easy to overlook holes in the entertainment scene. But stand-up comedy is something that, as it turns out, people here miss and wish there was more of it.

On Friday and Saturday nights, Daryl Makk and Stephanie Foley were in Yellowknife at the end of a comedy tour. The pair travelled to places such as High Level, Rainbow Lake and Fort Smith before getting here.

"It was a long drive, but very enjoyable," said Foley at Hot Shots Pub & Grub before her set Friday night. "I'm having a blast."

I told her I like her guitar, which is a tiny little thing with a heart-shaped hole (pic 1).

"It's a junior because I'm tiny," she said.

And the crowd was having just as big a blast, if the laughter said anything of it. On Friday night, the room was jam packed so it was hard to find a seat.

Luckily, a table of spectators close to the front of the room let us sit with them. Chris Diavoititsis, Trish Borden, Mrs. Marcy Lau-a, Sally Wight and Phil Leblanc (pic 2) were having a great time. Borden said back home in Kelowna, she and her friends used to go out to a comedy club every
